

Abstract

The urgency of undertaken research is caused by the interest of contemporary linguistics in human's inner world and by researchers' attention to correlation of language forms with structures of knowledge. These factors define the significance of doubt studying within cognitive-discursive paradigm. In this paper cognitive metaphorical models are revealed and cognitive metaphors are analyzed. Cognitive metaphors help study categorization of man's inner world.