

UDC 811.133.1/ 81'371

Tatyana Yu. Zalavina
Nosov Magnitogorsk State Technical University Magnitogorsk, Russian Federation
tania_mgn@rambler.ru

PHRASEOLOGICAL SYNONYMY AS A METHOD OF REFLECTING REALITY IN NATIONAL LANGUAGES

Abstract

This article presents an analytic study of phraseological synonymy as one of the methods of reflecting the surrounding reality in the language worldview in national languages. The ability of phraseological units to form synonymic series is demonstrated on the example of the verbal phraseological units objectifying the concept of «blame» in the French language. The main criteria for synonymy of the considered phraseological units are belonging to the same grammatical category and the presence of the same set of basic semantic components. The following types of phraseological synonyms embodying the concept of BLAME were found: verbal phraseological units which differ in lexical composition but have a similar syntactic structure; verbal phraseological units with a similar syntactic structure and a common lexical component.

Keywords: phraseological synonymy, synonymic series, verbal phraseological units, concept, the French language.

doi: 10.22250/2410-7190_2018_4_2_38_46